Do I really need any help?

A great many men and women in business do not believe they have serious problems, but very often they can help themselves just by talking about their business to an intelligent listener, which SCORE tries to be. An outsider to a business can suggest different and perhaps better procedures, whereas someone who is immersed in the daily business problems cannot always think of the best improvement methods.

How do I get help?

You may come to the SCORE office during business hours and a counselor will be available to meet with you. An appointment is not necessary, but you can make one for a particular day and time by calling the SCORE office at 316-269-6273. If you have a specific question, a telephone conversation with a counselor may suffice. Just call 316-269-6273 and ask to speak to a counselor.

Why the need to call SCORE?

Almost every business has an area of its operation that could benefit from proper guidance in the techniques of successful planning and managing. Impartial advice is valuable to business operators who often cannot pinpoint their potential problems. In addition to their own successful background, SCORE is able to draw upon the resources of the Small Business Administration.
